How a Legend Destroyed the Aztec Empire in Mexico

The Columbia Broadcasting Company at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 6, will present "Appointment With Destiny," the story of Hernan Cortes's conquest of the Aztec empire in Mexico, to be seen locally on channels 11 and 12.

The book behind the film's story is one of the most famous manuscripts of all the literature of the world. A copy is in my personal library. The title, "The Discovery and Conquest of Mexico, 1517-1521," by Bernal Diaz del Castillo. The author, an educated Spanish soldier of fortune, was in Cortes's army on the march against the Aztec emperor Montezuma.

Seldom does a military leader have in his ranks an able and accurate historian, but Cortes had one—Bernal Diaz del Castillo. His original manuscript today rests in the archives of the Republic of Mexico. My edition was translated from the original by A. P. Maudslayi and published by Farrar, Straus and Cudahy in 1956.

What makes this book significant, besides being a detailed and accurate account of war and conquest, is the disclosure that a legend among the Aztecs destroyed them and changed the course of history in our America.

The odds against Cortes were unbelievable. Appointed commander of the expedition against Mexico by Diego Velasquez, Spanish governor of Cuba, he sailed from Trinidad Feb. 18, 1519, with this motley army:

- 11 ships
- 500 soldiers
- 100 shipmasters and pilots
- 16 horses and mares

He was attacking a rich and populous empire with thousands of Aztec warriors. No sooner did he make a landing but Bernal and others advised Cortes to destroy his ships—for two purposes, (1) to discourage any thought of mutiny among his frightened army, and (2) to utilize the 100 seamen as soldiers.

But for all the odds against them the Spaniards had an overpowering advantage of which they were unaware. In the Aztec religion there was a legend that their god of ancient days would one day return to them as a white man.

When Montezuma learned that the white Cortes had landed he and his Aztec counselors concluded that this was the return of their legendary god.

So they met the invaders with fabulous gifts. Later there was bitter fighting—but defeatism had seized the Aztec warriors and their doom was sealed.

Because of a legend an empire was lost.

It is to Bernal Diaz del Castillo's everlasting credit that he reported this legend—at the expense of picturing his leader as a captain who stumbled into incredible luck invading a hostile country 3,000 miles from his native Spain.

The CBS film can't possibly grasp in 60 minutes the scope and suspense of the 472 pages in this world-famous book.

But I am obligated as a student of history to report to you that CBS will do its best at 7 p.m. Wednesday.

Peterson to leave post

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Commerce Peter G. Peterson will leave his current position some time in January to take over a new government council in charge of all U.S. international economic policy, it was learned today.

Peace session is called off today, no explanation

PARIS (AP) — The negotiating session today between Henry A. Kissinger and Le Duc Tho was canceled this morning, but U.S. and North Vietnamese spokesmen said they would meet again Wednesday.

No explanation was given for cancellation of today's meeting. There was speculation that the announcement was a ruse to mislead newsmen, and that President Nixon's national security adviser and the Hanoi Politburo member were planning a secret rendezvous.

Eleven days ago during the last round of Kissinger-Tho negotiations, the North Vietnamese announced that the two men would not meet that day. But they slipped off to a suburban site and conferred for an hour.

Kissinger and Tho resumed negotiations Monday after a nine-day recess. They met for a total of five hours amid a complete news blackout. But officials in Washington said the talks are moving to a climax.

Tho and Xuan Thuy, the head of the North Vietnamese delegation to the Paris peace talks met this morning with Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh, the chief of the Viet Cong delegation to the talks, and other members of her delegation.

Kissinger conferred for an hour Monday night with Pham Dong Lam, the head of the South Vietnamese delegation to the talks.

Meanwhile, the South Vietnamese government kept up its campaign for the cease-fire agreement to include provision for withdrawal of all North Vietnamese troops in South Vietnam and safeguards to insure that the proposed National Council for Reconciliation and Concord won't turn into a coalition government.

These Saigon demands were outlined once again by South Vietnam's chief delegate to the weekly Paris peace talks, Pham Dong Lam, in a meeting with French journalists.

Despite South Vietnam's continuing insistence on these points, the belief was widespread that the United States is going to agree to the cease-fire this time, regardless of how little the North Vietnamese are ready to concede.

Threat to hold up welfare checks is made by government

WASHINGTON (AP) — Claiming there's a mistake on one of every four welfare checks, the government is threatening to withhold up to $600 million in federal relief funds next year unless states weed out ineligible and overpaid recipients.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare announced Monday it will begin cutting welfare "snatching" grants in January.

Each state's loss will be equal to welfare-spending errors spotted by mandatory, state-run spot checks.

The immediate goal HEW officials said, is to eliminate an estimated 700,000 persons illegally receiving Aid to Families With Dependent Children (AFDC) and another 100,000 ineligible persons receiving aid for the aged, blind and disabled.

The nationwide welfare-mis-spending rate is 8.3 per cent, HEW said, with Nebraska high at 9.8 per cent and North Dakota low at 1.2 per cent.

California and New York each stand to lose more than $60 million in federal matching funds next year, the last half of fiscal 1973 and the first half of fiscal 1974.

John D. Twinn, administrator of HEW's Social and Rehabilitation Service, said the cutbacks will be based on quality-control investigations first instituted in 1964 and refined in 1970.

The regulations require states to check on a specific percentage of welfare cases semi-annually to make sure there are no ineligible recipients, overpayments or underpayments.

The first complete sub-sample, covering 1.3 per cent of the welfare rolls last March, disclosed errors in about 25 per cent of payments, he said.

Twinn said 6.8 per cent of the 10.3 million persons receiving Aid to Families with Dependent Children and 4.9 per cent of the three million aged, blind and disabled adults were not eligible.

Overpayments were being made, he added, to 13.8 per cent of those on AFDC and 9.7 per cent in adult categories.

Twinn was hesitant to charge fraud, however, saying that more than half the errors came from state and local welfare agencies which failed to keep track of recipients' incomes and expenses.

All system are 'go' for launch

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Apollo 17's astronauts climb into their training spacecraft for the last time today, preparing for Wednesday's night-time launch and a farewell visit to the moon.

All systems — human, hardware, weather and rocket — were ready for the 9:53 p.m. EST liftoff, America's first night launching of humans into space.

Astronauts Eugene A. Cernan, Ronald E. Evans and Harrison M. Schmitt had the luxury of sleeping late to adjust their biological time clocks for an afternoon wakeup on the day they've trained for the last 16 months.

The launch crew ran into the usual number of minor and easily fixable problems — hose connections that sprung leaks, an air filter that didn't fit, a piece of scientific equipment that wasn't working right.

None of it was important enough to disrupt the minute-by-minute schedule as electronic clocks tick downward for the liftoff.

"The weather outlook continues to be favorable," the space agency said. "The forecast calls for partly cloudy skies with winds from 8-12 m.p.h. out of the south. The temperature in the vicinity of the launch pad should be in the 60s."

That should be good news for the 600,000 space buffs expected in the Cape Kennedy area in central Florida and millions of others in a 500-mile radius who will see the Saturn 5's 2,300-foot-long tail of fire if skies are clear.

And the rodents — five tiny mice who'll give their lives for science — came aboard today in individual tubes inside a sealed aluminum canister. They'll ride in the command ship America with Evans around-and-round the moon while Cernan and Schmitt explore the combination highland-lowland area of Taurus-Littrow on the surface.

Experimenters implanted water-like cosmic ray detectors under the skulls of the mice. Back on earth, the tiny natives of the California desert will be killed and their pea-sized brains examined to determine how cosmic radiation has affected brain tissue.

That experiment looks to the future when humans hope to make extended space flights, but another lunar landing by Americans is not in plans for the rest of the century except perhaps as a joint Russian-American venture.

The astronauts went to the top of the 36-story Saturn 5 rocket Monday to refresh themselves on emergency procedures should there be need for a hurry-up abort. In the afternoon Cernan and Schmitt went into a stationary trainer that uses movie screens to simulate the landing on the moon. Evans rehearsed in a similar machine for re-entry into earth's atmosphere and splashdown in the Pacific on Dec. 19.

? : What's the significance

NEW YORK (AP) — As the Apollo astronauts prepare to board their spaceship for the moon, dozens of philosophers and futurists will be studying the significance of the flight aboard a ship at sea.

A seminar on space, called "Voyage Beyond Apollo: A conference on the total environment and the future of civilization" will be held on the S.S. Statendam.

The ship set sail from New York Monday evening and will arrive off Cape Kennedy in time for the launch Wednesday night.

Scientists and writers like Norman Mailer and Katherine Anne Porter and other ship passengers will have a chance to listen in on discussions about "Interstellar Communication," "Ecological Intelligence."

Miss Porter said she hadn't been on the boat long enough to draw any parallels yet with her last book, "The Ship of Fools." She said she plans to write an article for Playboy magazine about the Apollo 17 cruise.

"I'm taking the seminar for my own education because I haven't really paid much attention to these space shots from the scientific angle," she said. "Man in his restlessness has always been trying to leave terra firma. What is it that makes life so difficult on earth that man always wants to get away?"

Miss Porter, 82 years old, confided that she never thought she'd still be alive this year "so this moon shot and trip is very exciting for me."

Mailer, wearing a suit and maroon turtleneck and his greying hair trimmed, was sipping champagne in his cabin with his sister and with his wife, the former Carol Stevens. "I can take or leave the seminars, though I guess I will participate in the discussion on the arts," he said. "What I'm really looking forward to is seeing the bird go up at night."

He suddenly remembered he'd forgotten his field glasses. "How monumentally stupid," Mailer exclaimed to his wife.

The idea for the seminar cruise was conceived by futurists Arthur C. Clark, Robert Duncan-Enzman and Richard Hoagland. "I'm disappointed that more people didn't sign up for the seminar," said Hoagland, "but the people that did come will have a major impact when they return. We also plan a book and a film documentary from the seminars."

Nighttime launch of Apollo 17 presents problems

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The nighttime launch of Apollo 17 on Wednesday has meant "blindfold practice" for the specially trained Air Force crews assigned the job of rescuing the astronauts if the moon mission is aborted.

An hour before the 9:53 p.m. EST liftoff, the "beach boss" — Lt. Col. Raymond A. Boyd — will be in the air aboard one of four helicopters hovering in stacked formation about five miles north of the launch complex.

Three HH53 choppers, known as Jolly Green Giants, will be poised to dispatch crews of doctors, firefighters, frogman and hatch opening specialists to find the command module on land, in a swamp or in the Atlantic Ocean.

"Our response time is 30 minutes," said Boyd, 51, a Vietnam veteran.

Within a half-hour from the time the mission is aborted, Boyd said, the helicopter teams can find the capsule, drop the pararescue team and retrieve the astronauts. "Our biggest problem at night, of course, is visibility," Boyd said. "We have had very extensive training for night sea recovery not only for Apollo 17 but for Skylab."

Rescue at sea is the most probable, extracting the astronauts from an overturned command module in marshes near the Cape is the most difficult, Boyd said.

To compensate for a lack of visibility Boyd has added two Army UH-1 helicopters with powerful xenon search lights that illuminate 1,000 square feet of ground.

At sea, new procedures and an extra copter have been added for the first nighttime launch of a U.S. manned space flight.

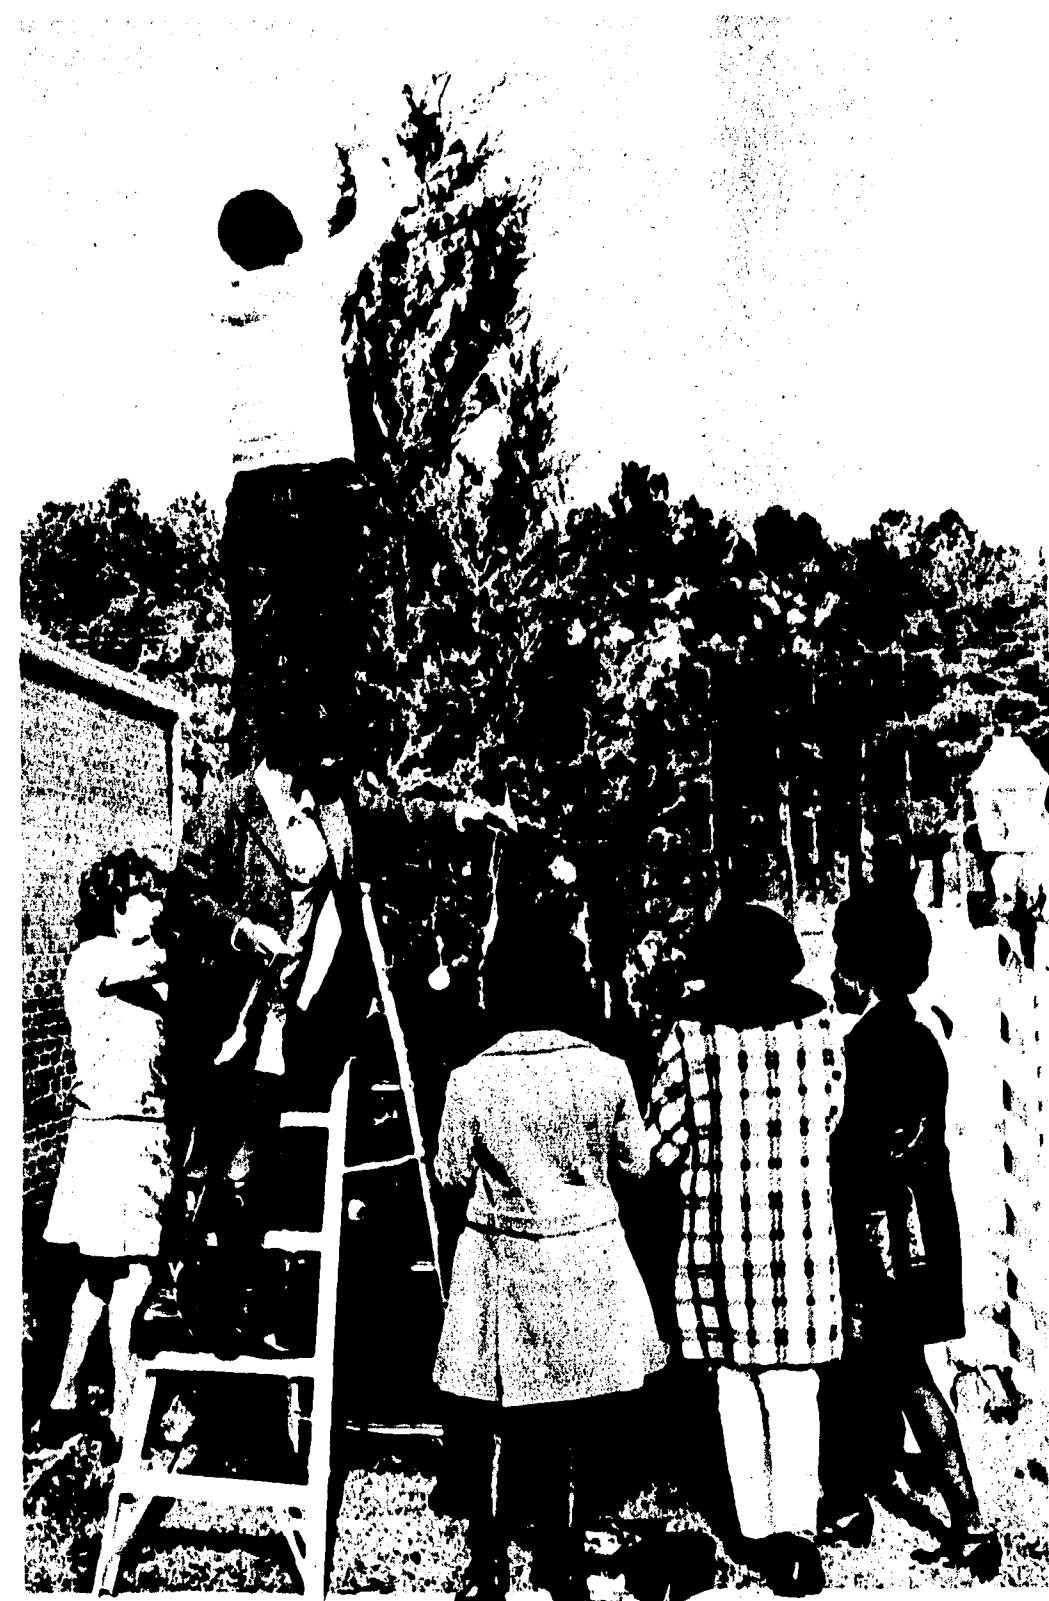

"In the daytime the pararescue men can jump out of the helicopter but at night the pilots have no depth perception — they can't tell if they're five feet or 30 feet above the water," Boyd said.

So, the three-man teams trained as frogmen will be lowered in nylon mesh webs. The other two helicopters will drop flares to provide light and smoke flares to determine the wind direction.

In all, there are 84 men assigned the job of helping rescue the three astronauts should it be necessary. Nine have the responsibility of getting the astronauts safely out of the capsule.

One of the pararescuers is Sgt. Transito Trujillo of Tucuman, N.M., who admits there is an element of danger in working at night.

Earnhardt trades 4-year term

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — State Sen. Milt Earnhardt of Fort Smith, who has not had opposition since 1964, said Monday he supposed his trade of a four-year term in the Arkansas Senate for a two-year term was a gamble, but said he thought "it would be a nice thing to do."

Earnhardt acquired a four-year term when incumbents and senators-elect drew lots Sunday to determine who would come up for re-election in 1974 and who would have a safe seat until 1976. But he swapped the four years he drew for the two-year term Sen. Morrell Gathright of Pine Bluff had drawn.

The drawing is required by the state Constitution to establish staggered terms of senators following each 10-year redistricting of the Senate. Eighteen senators drew two-year terms and the other 17 drew four-year terms. Beginning in 1974, all senators will be elected for four-year terms.

Before the drawing Sunday at the senators' traditional duck dinner, Earnhardt said he told the members he thought "it would be a nice gesture for senators who have had no opposition, if they drew a four-year term, to voluntarily turn it over to some of the other senators who maybe had hard opposition."

Earnhardt said he thought that to do something like that for a fellow senator would be nice, especially in these days of high campaign costs.

"I know some of them, for example, who had two opponents—one in the summer primary and one in November," he said. "To go to all that (campaign) expense and then draw a two-year term would be tough."

Obituaries

MRS. LUCILLE NELSON
Mrs. Lucille Nelson, the wife of the late Henry Nelson, died Sunday night, Dec. 3.

Survivors include a son, Rev. Samuel Smith of Gurdon; one sister, Beatrice Smith of Arkadelphia; two brothers, George Cook and Forest Cook of East St. Louis; 14 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete and will be announced by Hicks Funeral Home, Inc.

But he said: "I was the only one who did it (trade), I guess, because I didn't hear of anyone else trading."

He conceded his gesture was unusual, but "I suppose that as you get along in life, you get a little more maturity and you get more down to earth and think of things like that."

Earnhardt said he had at first offered in advance of the drawing to trade a four-year term, if

Final drafts of legislation are adopted

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Final drafts of legislation were adopted Monday by the Arkansas Committee on Legislative Organization for presentation to the 1973 session of the General Assembly.

The legislation is a result of recommendations made by the Eagleton Institute of Politics in its study of legislative organization and procedures in Arkansas.

One proposal would authorize a split session of the legislature in years in which a non-incumbent governor assumes office. Under the bill, the legislature would meet at the normal time on the second Monday in January following the election for the certification of election results, administering oaths of office and organizing the General Assembly for the regular session. After completing these matters, the legislature would recess until the second Monday in February, then begin transacting normal business.

A purpose of the proposal is to give a newly elected governor more time in which to prepare for the session.

The committee also approved a proposed constitutional amendment that would establish a Legislative Compensation Commission that would make recommendations on the salaries of legislators, which are now set by the state Constitution. The legislature could accept the recommendations or reduce the recommended amount of compensation but could not increase the amount. The commission would make recommendations in 1975 and every four years thereafter.

he won one, to his Fort Smith colleague, Sen. W. E. Rainwater. But Rainwater also drew a four-year term. The drawing apparently is not legally binding until the legislature convenes in January.

Coup causes no surprise

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — The army coup in Honduras caused little surprise, no violence or large troop movements and only brief interruption in international telephone service as Gen. Oswaldo Lopez Arellano returned to the presidency.

Lopez, 51, who started his military career as an enlisted man, ousted President Ramon Ernesto Cruz, a 68-year-old lawyer, on Monday. Cruz was reported under house arrest, his wife and four children had gone to the United States on Sunday.

Honduras is a small, rugged Central American country with about 2½ million persons and an area about the size of Tennessee. It is one of the world's largest exporters of bananas, and the United Fruit Co. and Standard Fruit Co. have large holdings.

Rumors of a coup had been circulating for months. Military supporters of Lopez said he returned to power because the country's two political parties had failed to share the government, producing a "chaotic situation."

Lopez overthrew President Ramon Villada Morales in 1963 and two years later congress elected him to a six-year term as president.

The general could not legally run for re-election in 1971 and he inspired an agreement between the Nationalist and Liberal parties to divide the 64-seat Congress evenly. The balance of power was then to be held by the directly-elected president.

In the subsequent voting, Cruz became the first popularly elected president since 1932, and Lopez resumed command of the army. But almost as soon as Cruz took office, a dispute developed between the two political parties over the division of power.

They signed a second agreement spelling out each party's duties and powers.

'High-handed' treatment by committee continuing

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — A top Republican official has given GOP governors a highly critical account of the way managers of President Nixon's re-election committee are continuing to treat the high command of the Republican National Committee.

Cochairman Thomas Evans made clear in his speech to a closed luncheon at the Republican Governors Conference Monday that he feels that the "high handed" treatment of the RNC that he said marked the campaign is continuing in the post-election period. His attack produced some surprise from governors who told newsmen later they had not realized the extent of the friction between officials of the party's national committee and those of the Committee for the Re-election of the President.

After a working breakfast today with aides, the governors plan to tour for the remainder of the day.

Evans said he felt the RNC has failed to receive proper credit for its work in the campaign and said he was particularly annoyed at a letter from Maurice Stans, finance chairman of both the RNC and CRP, directing committee officials to appear Dec. 15 with a proposed budget for the following year.

Those at the luncheon said that Evans, who left here for Washington shortly afterwards, told them he was unsure whether he could meet that deadline and objected to the idea of being summoned before Stans.

However, National Chairman Robert J. Dole told newsmen he didn't feel as strongly as Evans about having to go before Stans because "after all, he's got the money." He added that "I understand it is still coming in" to the re-election committee.

The Kansas senator told a news conference earlier Monday that the Republican National Committee would end the year with a debt of probably $200,000, adding that "hopefully, there might be a little money transferred" from the re-election group.

Evans' comments followed a proposal by the two senior Republican governors, New York's Nelson A. Rockefeller and Colorado's John A. Love, that the semiannual meeting of GOP governors concern itself more with politics and less with governmental problems such as revenue-sharing.

Gov. Linwood Holton of Virginia, scheduled to become chairman of the Republican Governors Association at the close of the present meeting, told reporters he also favors greater emphasis on politics and hopes the group can play a bigger role in party activities.

The stress on politics at the closed luncheon was in marked contrast with Monday's formal program, featuring two panels on states' relations with federal and local government, and a breakfast with Vice President Spiro T. Agnew that concentrated almost entirely on governmental matters.

Court begins review of Lt. Calley's case

FALLS CHURCH, Va. (AP) — A military court has begun a review of Lt. William L. Calley Jr.'s conviction in the My Lai massacre following an appeal by Calley's lawyers that his 30-year prison sentence was too harsh.

"I think he has had his lesson—way more severe than I think is justified," said George W. Latimer, Calley's civilian attorney, in portraying Calley's actions at My Lai as those of a young officer responsibly carrying out orders.

The three-judge Army Court of Military Review is expected to announce early next year whether it will sustain the conviction and uphold the sentence, reduce it or set Calley free. The court cannot increase the penalty.

Calley, 29, was convicted nearly two years ago of murdering at least 22 Vietnamese civilians at My Lai during a search-and-destroy mission March 16, 1968. He was sentenced to life in prison but that subsequently was reduced to 30 years.

Throughout nearly six hours of oral arguments Monday, Latimer pictured Calley as the scapegoat, noting that of 25 men charged in connection with the massacre only one—Calley—was convicted.

"How long is it necessary that Lt. Calley have to serve in prison to act as a deterrent for other soldiers (not) to do the same thing?" he asked.

The defense argued that Calley should not have been convicted of any crime greater than manslaughter, contending that he acted without malice, and without malice there could be no murder charge.

"We are saying that he did not know what he was doing was murder," said Calley's Army lawyer, Capt. J. Houston Gordon of Covington, Tenn. "Rather, we are saying he thought he was doing his job."

Countered the government: "For the sake of expediency, that man summarily executed a group of people."

In asking the review court to overturn the conviction, Calley's lawyers argued that the court-martial was illegal because he was held without consent beyond his discharge date; that there had been influence from President Nixon on down the chain of command; and that they were prevented from questioning such potential witnesses as Gen. William C. Westmoreland about outside influence.

The government answered that there was no attempt to exercise influence and that anything done by Westmoreland was in his official capacity as either commander of American troops in Vietnam or as Army chief of staff.

Should the review court affirm the conviction and sentence, Calley could petition the Court of Military Appeals, the next step in the review process. In a process separate from the legal steps the Army Clemency and Parole Board is reviewing his appeal for clemency.

WIN AT BRIDGE

Bidding review locates ace

last spade on dummy's club jack.

Do you see why South elected to play the seven of clubs? No, it wasn't because East held the queen and not the ace. It was because when South reviewed the bidding he remembered that East had passed in second seat.

East had shown up with the ace of hearts and was marked with the queen of diamonds. If he didn't hold the king of spades, South was sure of his contract. If he did hold the king of spades, he couldn't also hold the ace of clubs but might hold the queen.

Therefore, when South played the low club he had given himself the best chance to make his contract. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

WIN AT BRIDGE

The bidding has been:

West	North	East	South
Pass	1♥	Pass	1♠
Pass	3NT	Pass	2♠
Pass	5♣	Pass	4♥

You, South, hold:
♠AK65 ♥AK65 ♦32 ♣KQ3

What do you do now?
A—Mid six hearts. You have little interest in seven since your partner bid just three no-trump at his second turn to act.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of bidding three no-trump, your partner has bid three clubs over your two spades. What do you do now?

MR. AND MRS. DONALD EDWARD HAMPTON

Miss Baker becomes bride of Mr. Hampton

Miss Wanda Carol Baker was wed to Donald Edward Hampton on Nov. 21, at 7 p.m. in the Bodcaw No. 1 Baptist Church. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. W.H. Baker of Bodcaw and Mr. and Mrs. L.J. Hampton of Hope.

The candlelight ceremony was performed by Rev. D.D. Fairchild of Perrytown. Wedding music was presented by Mrs. Labe Haynie of Prescott and Miss Susan Turner of Hope. Candelights were Jimmy Tye and Johnnie Hampton, both of Hope.

The bride, given in marriage by her father wore a gown of peau de soie. The bodice of the gown featured a victorian neckline and long puffed sleeves with wide cuffs fastened with bridesbuttons. Lace trimmed with seed pearls formed an apron effect on bodice and skirt. Her shoulder-length veil was secured by a circle of white satin roses. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses and tangerine carnations.

Mrs. Dickie Carlton, sister of the bride served as matron of honor. Miss Kristi Hampton was flower girl and ringbearer was Steven Tye.

Joe Hampton, brother of the groom served as best man. Ushers were Ken McMahon and Randy Hare, both from Hope. The couple will reside in Hope.

Helen Help Us!

by Helen Bottel

How Help the Aged and Lonely? DEAR RAP:

I've been reading about the Foster Grandparents program where retired people sort of "adopt" kids in children's hospitals and make them feel wanted and loved.

Our girls' club would like to do this in reverse: "adopt" old people who are all alone in rest homes. It wouldn't be like Candy Strippers, but rather each girl would have ONE "grandpa" or "grandma" and be a special friend. We hear a lot of these people don't have anyone at all to visit with or write to.

How do we go about it? —

THE GIRLS

DEAR GIRLS: Here's how one girl realized a similar dream:

Two years ago Sara Harvey, a high school junior, made a field trip with her psychology class to Western State Hospital in Staunton, Virginia. Saddened by the loneliness and vacant "waiting" of the geriatric ward patients, she organized "Project Grandpa," and soon had over fifty volunteers.

Each of the young people in the group "adopted" an elderly man at Western State, and on a one-to-one basis, wrote letters, sent gifts, and made monthly visits.

Results of their kindnesses were striking. In fact, they are often called "The Miracle Workers of Staunton." Men who had been withdrawn and depressed for years have improved mentally and physically, almost beyond belief. Silent ones are talking again. They watch for the mail, live for those visits of their "grandchildren."

The volunteers? They love what they're doing: it's great making someone else a little happier. They even enjoy the monthly six-hour round trip from their homes in Arlington to the State Hospital. And they're much appreciated, too. Among many congratulations is a recent letter which reads:

It is deeply reassuring to hear of actively concerned and dedicated youthful citizens as you. . . . Because you have sacrificed time and energy to bring joy into the hearts of others, you have not only gained in personal rewards but have also added immeasurably to the vitality of the entire community."

South won the diamond lead with dummy's king and led a low heart. East played the eight and South won the trick. He played his ace of diamonds; ruffed his last diamond in dummy and threw East in with the ace of trumps.

East led the five of clubs and after a slight amount of thought, South played his seven-spot. West took his ace and shifted to a spade, but the defense had all the tricks they were going to get. South rose with dummy's ace; led a club to his king and since East's queen of clubs had fallen, South was able to return to dummy with the 10 of trumps and get rid of his

New Spring fashions 'organized & relaxed'

By ANN HENCKEN
Associated Press Writer
The new spring fashions are organized and relaxed looking instead of frantic and hooky.

Clothes are put-together, lush, serene, collected, matched, coordinated, trim and non-nervous. People have begun to notice that the average woman on the street is looking neater. And the trend should continue — until two years from now when everyone is tired of neat and ready for "meany."

Polka dots were a favorite at the Kasper for Joan Leslie line, presented Wednesday at the American Designer Showings. Kasper liked the two-piece dress in black and ivory dots. Some of the richest-looking clothes were his ivory silk linen shirt dresses. They looked expensive, and were priced about $144.

The dot turned up again in a series of bathrobe and pajamas dresses and coats, but for $330, they seemed too much like the real thing.

Kasper liked dots for evening, too — in long ruffled organza. However, the dots didn't work as well as long banana-colored shirt dress — or an ivory dress and matching jacket.

Other Kasper favorites: plaids for day — the double skirt — the soft suit.

In the J.L. Sport collection, Kasper reached for the cardigan tennis sweater set — flatter and neat. Skirts are narrower, and that wrap look is gaining ground, with designers like Kasper, and Halston, who has shown plenty of wraps for the coming season.

Large women will find some perfectly pleasant selections from the new JS Limited collection, from Jerry Silverman and Shannon Rodgers. Sizes run from 12 to 20.

"Somehow, nobody remembered the woman who has very wide shoulders, a large bone structure, or extra height," said Shannon Rodgers.

That goes for fat women, too. Large or heavy women should appreciate the dark side insets, the covered arms and necklines and the lack of heavy layers in this new offering.

Rinse Away Fly-Aways

A creme rinse after shampooing will cut down on electricity and fly-away hair during the winter months.

Chalk for Shadow

Plain pastel chalk can be substituted for eye shadow. The chalk is inexpensive and there's a wide variety of colors to choose from.

Mr. & Mrs. Stretch honored at dinner

Mrs. Harry McKillip entertained at her home on Brannan Street Sunday, Dec. 3 with a dinner party for Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Stretch's 25th wedding anniversary. A beautiful 3-tiered anniversary cake served as a centerpiece on a table overlaid with a lace cloth.

Covers for 12 included Molly Stretch, Mr. and Mrs. Lester

The designers capitalize on covering the arms by jeweling chiffon sleeves and even making them detachable. Short chignons have fluttering panels, and it's hard to tell where dresses leave off and bodies begin — which is the whole idea. The collection is priced $110 to $280.

Baby Your Skin

Baby oil is still one of the best make-up removers. During winter months, baby oil serves a dual purpose. Besides removing the last bit of make-up, it moisturizes and conditions the skin for the cold, skin-drying weather ahead.

Holiday Accessories

For cool holiday evenings, the sleeveless V-neck sweater dress comes with matching cardigan. Accessories with the new pastel plastic necklaces to complement a light shade dress or to contrast with a deeper color.

Mr. Moritz is a 1969 graduate of Lakeside High of Hot Springs. He attended Arkansas State College in Jonesboro and is a 1970 graduate of Red River Vocational Technical School. He is presently employed by the Arkansas Highway Department.

The wedding will be an event of January 5 at 7 p.m. in the Unity Baptist Church of Hope. No formal invitations will be sent. All friends are invited.

WSCS has Christmas luncheon

Christmas decorations of a large variety were used for the WSCS Christmas luncheon at the First United Methodist Church Monday, Dec. 4. The 45 in attendance included Dr. and Mrs. Mouson Mann, the Rev. and Mrs. Norris Steele, and WSCS President Mrs. Arch Wylie.

A special guest, Miss Clarice

Cannon, talked about the meaning of Christmas being "this thing called love" and gave a review of Henry Drummond's "The Greatest Thing in the World."

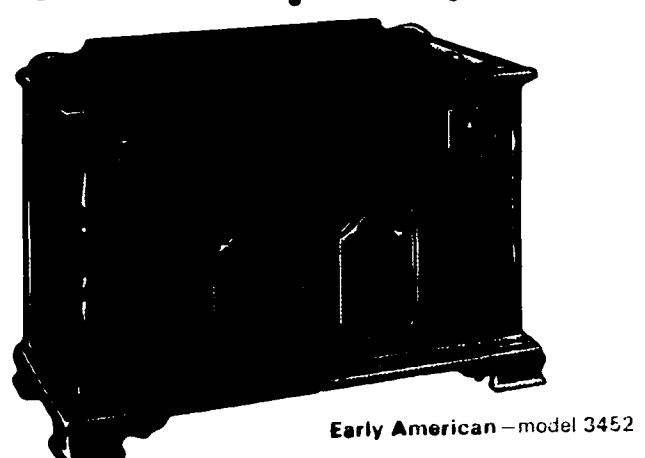

After an invocation by the Rev. Steele, a potluck luncheon was served, and a special Christmas offering was taken.

Hunting accidents on increase

By CHARLES BURTON
LITTLE ROCK.—The number of hunting accidents reported to the Arkansas Game and Fish Commission is on the increase this year. According to Commission Hunter Safety Coordinator Wendell Jackson there have been 25 cases of accidental shootings reported already this year while last year only 21 were reported all year. Jackson said he did not feel that this indicates a drastic rise in shooting accidents, but is due instead to a better reporting system.

Jackson observed that none of the victims involved in these reports was wearing hunter orange. In all instances the victims involved were clothed in camouflage suits. Three of the victims were archers hunting from tree stands and were shot by squirrel hunters. Of the 25 reports, five were fatalities.

Arkansas does not have any regulation requiring hunters to display blaze orange or hunter orange but Jackson said that all hunters should make this part of their regular field clothes. He also urged all persons involved in the hunter safety program to contact him through the Enforcement Division of the Game and Fish Commission at the Game and Fish Building on the State Capitol grounds at Little Rock.

Duck season opens, some species are protected

LITTLE ROCK.—Duck season is open in Arkansas and according to late reports from the field hunting is a little difficult. Heavy rains over the past few weeks have left an abundance of water in Arkansas and this has scattered the ducks considerably. Commission waterfowl biologist Dave Donaldson reports about 750 to 800 thousand ducks in the state, mostly mallards. Donaldson says that most ducks are staying in flooded soybean fields, and being in these large open fields makes them difficult to hunt.

The duck season will run through Jan. 13, 1973 and the limit is four ducks per day. All four ducks in the bag may be mallards but the limit may not include more than two wood ducks and may not include any redheads or canvasbacks.

All hunters age 16 and older must have a valid hunting license and a federal duck stamp. Hunters should remember that any birds picked in camp must have the head or one fully feathered wing left attached until the birds are taken home or to a commercial preservation facility. For a complete rundown on the federal regulations concerning the hunting of waterfowl hunters should consult 1972-73 federal hunting regulations pamphlet number 90.

Iowa upsets Kentucky

By ALEX SACHAR
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Baron, Adolph Rupp, had an unfamiliar view of Monday night's Kentucky-Iowa college basketball game, and he was not particularly pleased by what he saw.

Kentucky, ranked eighth nationally, was upset on its own home court by unranked Iowa 79-66 as Rupp watched from a seat in the stands at Lexington's Memorial Coliseum.

Rupp, the winningest coach in college basketball history in his 42-year tenure at Kentucky, was forced to retire following last season, after he reached the school's mandatory retirement age of 70. Joe Hall, Rupp's top assistant, inherited the Wildcats coaching post.

"Mistakes by the dozen," noted Rupp, as the two teams combined for 29 turnovers. Kentucky sank just 29 of 70 shots from the field for a meager 41.4 per cent, while Iowa shot at a rate of 56.9 per cent.

The game was tied 42-42 early in the second half, but Neil Fegebank scored 12 points in the second half and directed the surprising Hawkeyes to a lead which was as high as 15 points.

Iowa got balanced scoring, with Kevin Kunnert hitting 17 points, Rick Williams 15, Fegebank 14, Jim Collins 13 and Candy LaPrince 12. Kentucky was topped by Jim Andrews' 14 points, although he was in foul trouble much of the game.

Rupp, who is now serving as president of the Memphis Tams of the American Basketball Association, steadily refused to comment on the play of the Kentucky team.

Dressed in his familiar brown suit, he found it uncomfortable sitting six rows up.

Dream comes true with broken down race horse

By G. MICHAEL HARMON
MIAMI (AP) — Ever since John Birdsong was a boy in Clarkdale, Miss., and plastered his bedroom with pictures of Native Dancer, his dream was to cheer his own thoroughbred to victory from the rail of a big-time race track.

Birdsong, a 28-year-old hospital worker from Detroit, got half of his dream Monday when a broken down race horse he purchased for $1 to save the animal from destruction finished second in a $10,000 claiming race at Miami's Calder Race Course.

"He ran a good race but that's the way it goes," Birdsong said after Swift Don was edged out in the stretch by less than a half a length. "He'll win the next one. He's a winner now and everybody knows it."

Race fans at Calder thought so anyway. They made Swift Don an 8-to-5 favorite on the basis of a dramatic comeback record that reads like the plot out of an old Hollywood tearjerker.

About to be put to death because of a shattered right foreleg two years ago, Swift Don was nursed back to health by Birdsong and a woman horse trainer and worked into racing trim by a warm-hearted trainer. Then to the amazement of most everybody except Birdsong, Swift Don won three of his first six comeback starts and placed second twice.

"This is one of the most fantastic horses that ever lived," said Birdsong, who left a hospital bed against his doctor's wishes to get his first look at Swift Don in a race. "I knew he would make it the first time I looked into his eyes. He had the eyes of an eagle."

But Birdsong was the only one who thought Swift Don had any future.

"The first time I saw Don he was standing in an old dark stall," Birdsong recalled. "His head was hanging down and he looked embarrassed and ashamed. The man who owned him said he would never run again. He limped so bad it was horrible, but I just knew he could be a winner."

"I bought him and put him in a stable near Detroit that rented horses. I would go out every morning before I went to work and he would be lying there because it hurt him so much to stand. I would just sit there and rub him. I bought him the best oats and mixed them myself. I figured if I could eat, he could eat."

"Sometimes it looked real bad. Everybody was laughing. They called him the reject from the race track. He was the only thoroughbred there and that was his nickname—the reject from the racetrack."

Birdsong's luck began to change when he met Jean

McInch, a horse breeder. They became friends and Birdsong moved Swift Don to Miss McInch's Knotty Pine Farms near Lyons, Mich.

It was there that Birdsong was introduced to Mickey Giardelli of Detroit, a well-known horseman who currently is the leading trainer at Calder.

Last September, Giardelli volunteered to take the stallion to "see if I could do anything with him."

"When I first saw him I wouldn't have given you this for him," Giardelli said, dangling a scrap of cloth in the wind. "But he looked like he had heart and I was right and John was right all along."

NHL opens 2-day meetings

By JOE MOOSHEL
Associated Press Sports Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — Litigation, expansion and realignment were the top topics on the agenda when the National Hockey League's 16 governors opened their two-day meeting Monday.

The litigation involves the newly founded World Hockey Association and while Clarence Campbell, president of the NHL, avoided referring to the rival league, he said "it's a matter of record that there are numerous court suits involved."

Campbell did, however, cast a dark shadow over Kansas City's chances of nailing down an NHL franchise.

Kansas City and Washington, D.C., were given conditional franchises for the 1974-75 season with the NHL expanding to 18 teams.

"Kansas City has run into difficulty since the referendum on tax laws was rejected by the voters Nov. 7," said Campbell "and a new form of financing must be found."

Johnston County, Kansas, voters rejected Nov. 7 a proposed two per cent sales tax on motels and restaurants to finance a hockey arena.

Kansas City has had two extensions to meet NHL terms and now has until Dec. 15 to fulfill conditions which include financing a new building to house the would-be team.

Campbell said there is no problem involving the Washington franchise except for "the possibility of a nuisance factor brought on by some environmental groups who are complaining about noise and traffic problems."

If Kansas City fails to measure up to its obligations, the NHL probably will extend a franchise to Cincinnati. Others in line are Indianapolis, Cleveland and Phoenix.

Campbell said the governors also are studying the reserve clause and taking under consideration possible realignment in the future.

"We could consider realignment on a geographic basis or by use of other formulas but that's all a matter of the future," added Campbell.

Purdue coach resigns

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — It was "the hardest decision of my life—but right now I'm not a bit sorry I made it," said Bob DeLoach, who resigned Monday as head football coach at Purdue after a three-year record of 13-18.

DeLoach submitted his resignation after a "frustrating" season that saw the Boilermakers drop their first three games, then rear back to finish third in the Big Ten with a 6-2 record.

The 45-year-old coach, who has been associated with Purdue for 23 years, decided it was time to make a change.

"There was absolutely no pressure on me to resign," he said. "I just decided it wasn't fair to my family to devote so much time to football and so little time to them."

Cougars dominate game

DALLAS (AP) — The score of the Carolina Cougars-Dallas Chaparrals American Basketball Association game Monday night was 132-116, but it only took a look at the statistics to figure out which team was the winner.

The ABA East leading Cougars dominated all phases of the game, which was the only pro basketball contest of the evening, before a paltry crowd of 1,434.

Consider these statistics: There was Billy Cunningham's 28 points. Carolina's 60.1 field goal shooting percentage. And the Cougars' 62.7 shooting at the free throw line.

The Chaps committed an unbelievable 29 turnovers.

Finger-biting excitement for spectators: Manila's international cockfight derby, Philippines' largest of year.

Winning rooster does dance of triumph over defeated opponent huddled on cockpit floor.

COCKFIGHT DERBY

Feathers fill the air, money flutters everywhere, and the crowd screams its excitement. The Philippines is a country that takes its cockfighting seriously. So, it's natural that the grandest rooster show of the year is an international competition called a derby, drawing at least 15,000 spectators to the country's largest enclosed arena, in Manila. Over 200 fighting birds compete, their intense contest accompanied by the frenzied activity of bookmakers and bettors.

Cockfighting has been a favorite sport in the Philippines since before the Spaniards arrived in the 16th century. It's even been called the true national sport, although that's a controversial viewpoint. But there's no doubt about its widespread popularity. Unlike the derby, most fights take place in small cockpits in thousands of towns and villages throughout the islands. American fighting cocks are the most highly esteemed—large numbers of them are imported every year from the southern United States.

Caldwell guest speaker at Lions Club meeting

Lion Jack Caldwell presented a movie Monday during the Lion's weekly luncheon hour at the Town and Country restaurant.

The film, entitled "How A Car is Born" started with a survey of peoples likes and dislikes in a car five years before the car rolled off the assembly line. Styling, design, and engineering all come before tooling and actual manufacturing.

The film was entertaining and educational with spectacular scenes of steel making and other processes involved from moving the iron ore, and other materials, to the finished product.

Program chairman Yancey Reynolds arranged the program.

A.J. Rhodes, a Lion in the 1950s was reinstated as a current working member during the meeting.

Guests present were Albert Patton of Hope, guest of Lion Haskell Jones, and the following Lionesses assisting with the auction work; Muldina Jester, Euva Overturf, Alice Pendergrass, Odel Collier, Mary Caldwell, Barbara Wylie, Marie Mosier, Mary Dell McClelland, and Wanda White.

There will be no luncheon meeting on Dec. 11 but the annual Lions Ladies Night at Christmas will be observed at Perry's Restaurant that evening.

Regulations on gas are expected

By STAN BENJAMIN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental programming Agency soon will issue regulations to make lead-free gasoline available in time for 1978-model autos and their lead-hating antipollution devices, agency sources say.

But a planned reduction of lead in all grades of gasoline probably will be postponed for further public discussion, and thus postponed for about a year.

Once the review is completed, however, EPA may extend its original proposal into a complete phaseout, leaving no leaded gasoline on the market at all.

EPA last Feb. 23 proposed that 85 per cent of the nation's service stations be required to sell at least one grade of lead-free gasoline by July 1, 1974—that is, a 91-octane gasoline containing no more than 0.08 grams of lead per gallon.

Sources said EPA is sticking to this regulation and will issue it officially, despite oil-industry complaints that it is too tough.

While petroleum spokesmen argued for a more lenient standard in public hearings last March, automakers testified a few blocks away that their cars could meet 1975 antipollution standards only if gasoline lead is held to the EPA limit or lower.

Meanwhile, after EPA scientists said lead in auto exhaust could pose a health hazard, the agency proposed a phasedown beginning July 1, 1974, with a limit of 2.0 grams of lead per gallon.

The plan would have brought the lead level down, in steps, to 1.25 grams per gallon by Jan. 1, 1977.

But the EPA health study was criticized and a new study was conducted. And EPA experts say the new study reinforces their original conclusion.

"It doesn't support a two-gram level," said one EPA source.

"It supports taking it all out. Under this new document we would later propose a new phase reducing the lead essentially to zero."

Because the phasedown would then be based on a completely different health report, he said, EPA believes it must repropose that part of the regulation and allow renewed public comment.

"We're talking about a one-year delay," he said, "but it is not a matter of dropping phased reduction."

To keep up octane ratings for present autos, the lead probably would be replaced by more costly petroleum aromatics.

Deaths are reminders of another era

BOSTON (AP) — The deaths of four young women and the disappearance of another in the Boston area have prompted comparisons with the Boston Strangler murders of 19 years ago.

But "there's nothing to indicate these cases are all related," Boston Det. Lt. Edward F. Sherry said Monday.

Capt. John V. Silk of the Lynn police echoed the investigators' views, saying, "So far we haven't come up with anything — except that three of them went to the same school."

Sherry said a number of girls in Boston have been accosted recently while hitchhiking — a threat believed common in at least some of the five cases. They have talked to police, but the descriptions of their assailants were different in each case, he said.

However, police departments in Lynn, Brockton and Nashua, N.H., are keeping in close touch with Boston as they investigate the deaths of women in their areas in recent months.

All five girls were between 18 and 22, all residents of Boston or Cambridge, all white, all middle class and all attractive.

Autopsies indicated that three of them were strangled and the fourth was strangled and stabbed. Rape was established in two cases, but the two other bodies were not found immediately after death, and the time lag complicated autopsy findings.

Remembering: Nightmare on airliner

BLYTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Karen Ellis Chambers says that as the nightmare of being a captive aboard a hijacked Southern Airways DC9 dragged on, she "tried to keep everything in the present...each minute at a time and not to think too far ahead."

Mrs. Chambers was a stewardess on the jet when it was hijacked last month.

"I feared for my life and thought I would die," she said. "It was terrible, just terrible. It was the worst time of my life."

She said the aircraft was still ascending from the Birmingham, Ala., airport when three gunmen took over.

"I was sitting in the back on the jump seat crocheting a gift for mom when Lou and Mel Louis Moore and Melvin Cale, alleged hijackers) came up to the holding guns. They told me the plane was being hijacked."

She said the hijackers were fairly considerate.

"They wanted the passengers to be comfortable," Mrs. Chambers said. "On one occasion one of them got blankets for a passenger."

She said the passengers were not allowed to move around, but that the stewardesses were permitted to care for the passengers.

"The passengers were marvelous," she said. "Mr. Fortson (Alvin Fortson of Trumann, Ark.), an 83-year-old man, was on his very first flight. He was a real trouper."

She said one passenger refused to believe the hijackers were serious until they shot copilot Harold Johnson, but then the passenger "became very cooperative," she said.

"A gun has a calming influence on one's behavior," she said.

Mrs. Chambers said passenger hysteria followed the wounding of Johnson, but that no one moved.

She said she was standing next to Johnson when the hijackers shot him.

"I figured I was next to go," she said. "A couple of times during the flight I thought I had bought the farm."

She said the hijackers were "power mad."

"Once they had the plane they didn't know what to do with it," she said. "They didn't seem to realize that we couldn't just keep taking off and landing like that forever."

The plane made more than six stops that took it to Canada and Cuba.

"There were moments on the flight when I felt so isolated and alone circling around up there," she said. "I wondered if anyone down below cared what was happening."

She was asked about the FBI's decision to shoot the tires out of the plane while it was on the ground.

"I thought I was going to die," she said. "Now I don't believe the tire shooting was a good idea. It may be that the action saved the passengers' lives. It was an endless thing, the landing and taking off. After so many hours, everyone was getting uptight."

Two are given 10-year jail sentences

CONWAY, Ark. (AP) — Two Little Rock youths who were accused of robbing a Conway motel operator of about $1,500 were given 10-year prison sentences with five years suspended Monday.

Circuit Court Judge Russell Roberts sentenced the youths after they changed their plea from innocent to guilty.

Joe Austin, 16, and Michael Alsworth, 16, had been accused of robbing the motel operator on Sept. 16.

Following the robbery, police chased the car occupied by Austin, Dilworth and a third suspect, William Ratcliff, 18, of Little Rock from Conway to Little Rock. The chase ended when the youths' car collided with a North Little Rock police car on the Interstate 30 bridge over the Arkansas River.

Ratcliff jumped from the bridge and drowned. His body was recovered two days later.

What's in a Coin Motto?

One of the more confusing problems to face new coin collectors is the apparent similarity between two coins in all respects except for the presence of a motto or inscription on one specimen and not the other. This variable occurs often in 19th-century coinage but rarely does it affect value.

A typical example among United States gold issues is the 1866-S Half-eagle. The "Encyclopedia of U.S. Coins" classifies this piece as two types: VI Half-eagle (Coronet) without motto—of which

No form of Type-set or consecutive-series collecting should be attempted without some visual guidance.

The "Encyclopedia of U.S. Coins" graphically demonstrates each of the 119 United States coin types with 2-inch line illustrations showing every detail that may distinguish one from the other.

In addition, the collector will find a need for a grading guide and subsequently, a value guide if he is to control the presentation level of his collection within an allotted budget. This can be done with a revised copy of James F. Ruddy's "Photograde," a photographic grading guide that sells for $2.95 and shows pictorially the condition of every U.S. coin from "About Good" to "About Uncirculated." Leaving no doubt about the actual grade of a coin when compared to the photograph of that same piece in the book.

The third member of the basic book list pertains to the present market value of each coin in any prescribed condition according to their estimated values as adjusted annually. This is the collectors Red Book or "A Guide Book of United States Coins," which retails at $2.50.

People in the News

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — "I kept thinking I wouldn't be living the next day," says Eddie Smith of his bumpy, frightening one-mile ride down a rain-swollen drainage ditch.

The 14-year-old boy and 11-year-old Diane Huston escaped with only bruises from their ordeal, according to a hospital nurse.

Eddie said he, three younger brothers and Diane went to the edge of the ditch after school Monday "to watch the running water."

Tommy Smith, 9, fell into the ditch and the other four climbed down to hoist him out. While trying to pull themselves back up again, Eddie and Diane lost their hold, fell into the water and were swept away by the fast-moving current.

As the younger boys ran alongside the ditch trying to keep the pair in sight, the two clung to each other, occasionally sinking completely under water. Twice they were swept through culverts beneath roadways. The second time, Eddie said, Diane was torn out of his arms.

Soon after the separation, the girl said, she grabbed a branch alongside the ditch and pulled herself out. Her companion caught hold of another branch about a quarter mile further down.

Both were taken to Sharp Memorial Hospital and treated for numerous bruises from rocks they struck as they were washed from one side of the ditch to the other.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger will decide within one month whether he will return to his professorship in the government department at Harvard, according to a university official.

Prof. James Q. Wilson said on Monday he met in Washington with Kissinger Nov. 28, and Kissinger "indicated that he had not yet made a decision on his plans."

Last weekend, President Nixon said Kissinger would continue to serve as his adviser on national security affairs in his second administration.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actress Marnie Van Doren has married a corporation executive she met while both were campaigning for President Nixon's reelection, says a spokesman for the couple.

Miss Van Doren, 30, and Ross McClintock, 51, were married last week in a Las Vegas church, the spokesman said Monday. It was the third marriage for both.

McClintock is a senior vice president of the Fluor Corp. and president of the subsidiary Fluor Drilling Services.

The blonde, husky actress was previously married to baseball pitcher Lee Mayers and band leader Ray Anthony. She has one son by Anthony.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actress Jean Peters, who was married to billionaire Howard Hughes for 14 years, is coming out of a long retirement to play a leading role on the Hollywood Television Theatre version of "Winesburg, Ohio."

Miss Peters, 46, will be cast in the role of Elizabeth Willard, played by Dorothy McGuire on Broadway.

Miss Peters, who shunned publicity during her marriage to Hughes which ended in divorce in June, 1971, scheduled a news conference today to discuss her decision to return to acting. Her last movie was "A Man Called Peter" in 1965.

The production of "Winesburg, Ohio," adapted by Christopher Sergel from the book by Sherwood Anderson, will be seen March 8, 1973, on the Public Broadcasting Service network.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — James Earl Ray, confessed assassin of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., is asking that he be either be freed from prison or be granted another trial.

Attorneys for Ray, who is presently serving a 99-year prison term, filed a petition in federal court here Monday requesting a hearing that would allow Ray to withdraw his plea of guilty in the case.

It marked the first time Ray has ever pursued his case through federal court channels, having exhausted all state appeals.

He is in solitary confinement at the Tennessee State Prison in Nashville for the April 1968 sniper slaying of King in Memphis.

NEW YORK (AP) — As if he didn't have problems before, Santa Claus is facing the most serious logistics challenge of his life this year, and observers of serious mien and limited vision say he must trade his sleigh for a 747 jet.

It strains credulity, they say, to believe that anything less than that can transport the avalanche of gifts that are expected to tumble out of fireplaces on Christmas Eve.

Rising personal incomes, booming retail sales and surveys of buyer intentions indicate that more money will be spent this Christmas than ever before in history.

Retailers already are reporting sales between 8 and 9 per cent higher than a year ago, when the country was beginning to emerge from a recession, and they expect the percentage to be even higher in pre-Christmas weeks.

During the Thanksgiving week, traditional kickoff for the Christmas selling season, retail stores sold $8.85 billion of merchandise, about 8 per cent higher than in 1971, although one per cent lower than in the preceding week.

Fueling the surge is a resumption of growth in personal incomes, which had been swamped by inflation for several years. While inflation continues on an abating scale, incomes have grown strongly through the year.

In addition, and despite a 5.5 per cent jobless rate, more people are at work today than at any time in the nation's history.

Surveys indicate that the buying mood is strong almost everywhere, despite the irregular geographical pattern of prosperity that is often disguised by the national statistics.

A study by Sindlinger & Co. of Swarthmore, Pa., indicates that the country's total gift list will be enlarged by 25 per cent. More people will give more gifts to more people this year than ever before, said Albert Sindlinger, president.

Sindlinger, whose staff asks thousands of questions by telephone seven days a week, claims to have found good news for aunts, uncles and cousins.

LANDING POINT for the last of the Apollo manned moon missions is south of the Taurus mountains and the crater Littrow. The site is in a valley covered with dark-colored material which could be volcanic ash and near formations which could be volcanic cinder cones.

ROUTE of astronauts Eugene A. Cernan and Harrison H. Schmitt on their extravehicular excursion is sketched on a photograph of the Taurus-Littrow landing site. Numbers indicate stops for major experiments.

Most popular women in town--astronauts wives

COCOA BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Barbara Cernan and Jan Evans are the two most popular women in town.

Every hostess worth her salt is trying to get the wives of the two married Apollo 17 astronauts to attend her party.

And for the last Apollo flight, just like the ones that went before, there are parties and parties. On land, sea and air the hostesses are hard at work making sure Apollo 17 gets a send off worthy on the last scheduled U.S. manned moon mission.

The most elaborate and expensive party is being given Tuesday night by Time-Life. More than 200 people, including Mrs. Cernan and Mrs. Evans, have been invited to a luncheon in a circus tent, pitched in the parking lot of a Cocoa Beach hotel.

Journalist Mary Bubb, who organized the party, said Monday she had ordered 200 pounds of pork, 200 pounds of beef, 200 pounds of shrimp and more than $1,000 worth of liquor.

"I worked on this party for two months," Mrs. Bubb said. "It isn't just a party for the big names in the space industry, but for the backroom people as well."

Immunity and cancer studied

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — Some time back I read an article on cancer which stated that a substance could be injected into the cancer cell, arresting it. Is this process available to the public? I read the article with interest but did not know I would be personally interested. My husband is in his late 30s and we have a small child. He had a malignant tumor removed from his colon, but the doctor said it had already spread to two small spots on his liver. This has been three months ago. What can you say about this process and is there any possibility that this process could be available to my husband, and would it work on the liver?

Dear Reader — You must be referring to the work of Dr. Edmund Klein of Boswell Memorial Institute in Buffalo, New York. He has been doing research on treating breast cancer and skin cancer.

He did inject a substance directly into the tumor cells. The substance he used was tuberculin, the same substance used for skin testing for tuberculosis. The reason the skin test works is that a person who has been exposed to tuberculosis develops an immunity to it and when you inject the tuberculin material in the skin the body's immune system causes a reaction to occur.

Dr. Klein has taken advantage of this principle by injecting tuberculin into the tumor and then the body's immune system mobilizes and causes a reaction in the tumor. If the body's immune reaction is severe enough, it will literally reject the tumor cells. He has had some early success in the treatment of patients with breast cancer and skin cancer with this technique. It is still in the research phases and after the initial encouraging results in a small series of breast and skin cancers, it will no doubt be tested in other forms of cancer.

Cancer of the colon is a fairly common disorder. It is much more common in modernized nations such as the United States than it is in undeveloped countries. Many investigators think this is due to the differences in our diet, pointing out that we tend to eat large amounts of concentrated foods such as sweets and bakery products and do not get as much roughage in our diet as is obtained by individuals who eat natural foods such as unprocessed cereals, vegetables and raw fruit.

Our refined foods often move rapidly through the small intestine and remain in the colon a long time. In part because of lack of bulk. The end result is an increase in constipation (leading to the ill-advised laxative habit, and irritable colon) and an increased incidence of diverticulosis and even colon cancer. There are other factors, of course, besides food.

One of the best signs of cancer of the colon is an unexplained change in bowel habits. If a person starts developing recurrent diarrhea or suddenly develops constipation, he should seek medical attention immediately. If cancer of the colon is detected before it has spread, it can often be totally removed and permanently cured. As in most other types of cancer the earlier the detection the greater the likelihood of successful treatment.
